FOR MEMBER OF CONGRESS,
(Unexpired Term),
WALTER D. MCINDOE,
of Marathon county.

Nomination of Gen. McIndoe.

The republican convention at Sparta having nominated Gen. Walter D. McIndoe for the new congressional district, and the republican congressional committee of the old second having recommended him to the voters of that district as a candidate to fill the unexpired term occasioned by the death of Hon. Luther Hatchett, there will be, we presume, a general acquiescence in the nomination in both districts. Rock county, we do not doubt, will, as usual, do her share in the support of the republican nominee. We understand that Gen. McIndoe is in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war and the enforcement of the President's proclamation. That, besides his well-known ability, should command him to the cordial support of the people.

The Useless Military Slaughter.

The enormous sacrifice of our brave soldiers at Fredericksburg, is every where the subject of comment and profound regret. It might be borne with patience and resignation, if there appeared to be any necessity for it, or if it had resulted in a victory. But it appears to have been a useless slaughter of men. If the commanding general knew that he was marching his army into a semi-circle of cannon, rifle pits and entrenchments, with sharpshooters and infantry behind stone walls, ready to pour a concentrated and destructive fire into the advancing columns, he ought to have known better than to have made the advance. If he did not know the situation he should have had that knowledge at any cost.

When the people ask the armies to advance and take Richmond, it is to be supposed that there shall be some discretion in the movement; because it is proper to assault the rebel capital, it by no means follows that the army must go forward regardless of proper military circumspection. There ought to be a distinction between headlong indifference to consequences and the other extreme of no advance and no disposition to do so. It seems, however, that our military authorities either sleep or are reckless. They cannot comprehend a wise and prudent activity, that takes care to strike the enemy sudden and sharp blows, with a knowledge of lurking dangers and resources of mind capable of avoiding it. They either do in stupidity or are frantic in action. Is there no such thing as flanking a strong position? With our 700,000 men it would appear to a common sense view, not the least instructed in military strategy, that a hundred thousand men might have gone to the right of Fredericksburg, crossed the Rappahannock and attacked their left flank, while another hundred thousand might have landed at Port Conway below, and advanced on their right. The center at Fredericksburg might have been fortified and held with a small force. In addition to this, the unilitary and very simple public thought that Banks' expedition, in conjunction with the iron-clad navy, so much boasted of, but so little used, might have made an advance by the way of James river and Petersburg.

But science did not see it in this light. We make no flank movements; we do not attack the enemy in the rear; we send Banks to Mobile or New Orleans where he is not wanted; the gunboats are idle; we give the enemy six weeks to fortify and collect his veterans; and then we cross a river, and attack his stronghold with only 40,000 men. The wonder is that they were not all killed or driven into the river, after the style of Hall's Bluff, instead of the sacrifice of 11,000 brave men.

THE CENTER.

The third and fifth army corps, under Gen. Hooker, formed the center and co-operated with Sumner's column during the battle. Gen. Burnside was anxious that a movement should be made as early as possible, and accordingly at the break of day the troops commenced to move towards the enemy's earthworks. The men were full of hope and confident of success, and they filed out of the city in splendid order. Skirmishing commenced shortly after daylight, and in a short time afterwards the rebel artillery commenced playing upon us through the fog. The firing was so inaccurate, however, that our troops paid but little attention to it, and kept pressing on, regardless of the deadly missiles which were flying through the air. By and by our artillery responded, and for hours a most terrible carnage was kept up on both sides. The enemy's position was one of exceeding strength, and appeared to be invulnerable to our artillery, notwithstanding our guns were excellently handled. About noon the infantry, who had been waiting for a fog to clear off, advanced for the purpose of storming the enemy's position on the hill. Confident of victory, the troops marched steadily up to within musket shot of the batteries; but a murderous fire from the rebel riflemen, added to the fury of the commandant, compelled our men to fall back with heavy loss.

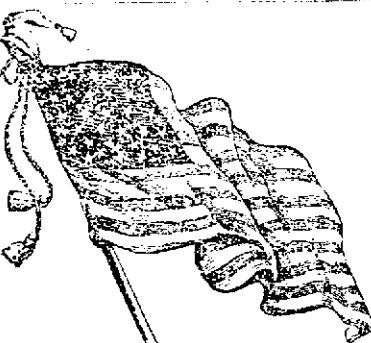

EDWARD EVERETT is recovering from a long illness.

The republican convention at Sparta having nominated Gen. Walter D. McIndoe for the new congressional district, and the republican congressional committee of the old second having recommended him to the voters of that district as a candidate to fill the unexpired term occasioned by the death of Hon. Luther Hatchett, there will be, we presume, a general acquiescence in the nomination in both districts. Rock county, we do not doubt, will, as usual, do her share in the support of the republican nominee. We understand that Gen. McIndoe is in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war and the enforcement of the President's proclamation. That, besides his well-known ability, should command him to the cordial support of the people.

The Useless Military Slaughter.

The enormous sacrifice of our brave soldiers at Fredericksburg, is every where the subject of comment and profound regret. It might be borne with patience and resignation, if there appeared to be any necessity for it, or if it had resulted in a victory. But it appears to have been a useless slaughter of men. If the commanding general knew that he was marching his army into a semi-circle of cannon, rifle pits and entrenchments, with sharpshooters and infantry behind stone walls, ready to pour a concentrated and destructive fire into the advancing columns, he ought to have known better than to have made the advance. If he did not know the situation he should have had that knowledge at any cost.

When the people ask the armies to advance and take Richmond, it is to be supposed that there shall be some discretion in the movement; because it is proper to assault the rebel capital, it by no means follows that the army must go forward regardless of proper military circumspection. There ought to be a distinction between headlong indifference to consequences and the other extreme of no advance and no disposition to do so. It seems, however, that our military authorities either sleep or are reckless. They cannot comprehend wise and prudent activity, that takes care to strike the enemy sudden and sharp blows, with a knowledge of lurking danger and resources of mind capable of avoiding it. They either close in stupidity or are frantic and insane in action. Is there no such thing as flanking a strong position? With our 700,000 men it would appear to a common sense view, not the least instructed in military strategy, that a hundred thousand men might have gone to the right of Fredericksburg, crossed the Rappahannock and attacked their left flank, while another hundred thousand might have landed at Port Conway below, and advanced on their right. The center at Fredericksburg might have been fortified and held with a small force. In addition to this, the unilitary and very simple public thought that Banks' expedition, in conjunction with the iron-clad navy, so much boasted of, but so little used, might have made an advance by the way of James river and Petersburg.

But science did not see it; in this light we make no flank movements; we send Banks to Mobile or New Orleans where he is not wanted; the gunboats are idle; we give the enemy six weeks to fortify and collect his veterans; and then we cross a river, and attack his stronghold with only 40,000 men. The wonder is that they were not all killed or driven into the river, after the style of Bull's Bluff, instead of the sacrifice of 14,000 brave men.

THE CENTER.

The third and fifth army corps, under Gen. Hooker, formed the center and co-operated with Sumner's column during the battle. Gen. Burnside was anxious that a movement should be made as early as possible, and accordingly at the break of day the troops commenced to move towards the enemy's earthworks. The men were full of hope and confident of success, and they filed out of the city in splendid order. Skirmishing commenced shortly after daylight, and in a short time afterwards the rebel artillery commenced playing upon us through the fog. The fire was so inaccurate, however, that our troops paid but little attention to it, and kept pressing on, regardless of the deadly missiles which were flying through the air. By and by our artillery responded, and for hours a most terrific carnage was kept up on both sides. The enemy's position was one of exceeding strength, and appeared to be invulnerable to our artillery, notwithstanding our guns were excellently handled. About noon the infantry, who had been waiting for a fog to clear off, advanced for the purpose of storming the enemy's position on the hill. Confident of victory, the troops marched steadily up to within musket shot of the batteries; but a murderous fire from the rebel riflemen added to the fury of the cannonade, compelled our men to fall back with heavy loss. The attempt to carry the rebel batteries was repeated again in the afternoon, and the attacking party, strongly reinforced, started on the "double-quick," but the enemy, who was also heavily reinforced, proved too much for us. All along the line the battle raged with unusual fierceness, and had fairly got to work when the rebel artillery commenced playing upon us through the fog. The shots were all aimed at random, however, and produced but little effect. Notwithstanding the view was so obscured, the rebel artillerists kept up the cannonade for several hours, and, as peal after peal rang through the air, the effect was terribly sublime. The fire was returned by our batteries in gallant style, and for hours nothing but the deafening roar of artillery could be heard on all sides. Up to noon, when the fog cleared off and the balloonists were enabled to get a glance at the enemy's works, the fight was an artillery one, and productive of no very important result on either side. As soon as the sun shone itself, however, the infantry were brought into play and the work commenced in real earnest. Generals Mead and Gibbon's divisions encountered the right of Gen. O. P. Hill's command and Longstreet's veterans.

The fight raged furiously during the entire day, and our troops suffered terribly from the enemy's artillery. The enemy were posted behind hills in great strength, and at one time it seemed impossible to budge them a short distance. It was in the midst of this struggle that General Gibbon was wounded and partially disabled. He kept the field, however, during the remainder of the day, and won many laurels by his brilliant conduct. Gen. McClellan's endorsement of Gibbon's dash and ability has been fully borne out by the result of the day's fighting. During the afternoon Gen. Newton's division was moved up to the left of the center, when the fire, which had ceased in that part of the field, broke out again with redoubled fury. Our troops were here exposed to a plowing fire from the enemy's artillery, which was posted on the neighboring hills, and for a short time the Union soldiers were opposed to a destructive fire. Our artillery returned the fire with deadly effect, and immortalized themselves by their accuracy of aim and unwavering courage.

THE NIGHT.

Special to Chicago Journal.—Last Friday, at noon, the gunboat Cairo, when 21 miles above the mouth of the Yazoo river, and two miles below Haines' Bluff, was blown up by a torpedo. In nine minutes she sank in six fathoms of water. Nothing but her signal staff and chimney are to be seen. Singular to say, no one was hurt, but the boat, with her entire armament and outfit, is lost. The crew, taken from the wreck by the ram Queen of the West, have all arrived at Cairo on the Marmora.

The rebels have a battery on Haines' Bluff, and it is thought the torpedo was set off by a galvanic battery.

No attack has yet been made on Jackson, Tenn., though it is asserted that Morgan has crossed the Tennessee river with a large cavalry force, intending to cut off railroad communication with Corinth.

Matters in Grant's army are unchanged. Look out for important events down the river in a few days.

It is not supposed here that General McClellan will command any river expedition.

Small pox in Cairo is abating. From three to five contrabands die daily from cold and various diseases.

To-Day's Report.

(Reported Exclusively for the Daily Gazette.)

MORNING DISPATCHES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.

The morning papers contain nothing new from the seat of war.

The steamer Scotia arrived early this morning. Her dates are to Liverpool and Queenstown 7th. The newspapers advance nothing new on America. The Paris Moniteur, in a graphic official form, alludes to the presence of a French squadron in New Orleans, which is represented to have started the disaffected populace. The London Globe thinks the situation of America promises striking results soon. The Times thinks that the democratic successes have rendered the government desperate instead of daunted it, and it looks upon the last advice as the worst yet, and indicating that service war is about to commence. Gladstone, in a letter to Prof. Newman, denies that he has expressed any sympathy with the southern cause, or passed an eulogium on Jeff. Davis; has thought it out of his province to praise or blame such complicated questions. He claims to be a much better friend to the northern Americans than to those who encourage them to persevere in hopeless and destructive enterprise.

Another N.Y. paper for the Compromiser—Governor Lotcher, of Virginia, in a letter dated December 8th, indignantly denies that he has written to Fernando Wood, making peace propositions. What is more, he says he don't know Fernando, never has seen him, and has written to no one upon the subject.

Further, he reiterates "that Virginia will, under no circumstances, entertain any propositions, from any quarter, which may have for its object a restoration or reconstruction the late Union on any terms or conditions whatever."

Gen. GRANT'S ARMY.—A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, writing from Oxford, Dec. 11th, says that the advance of the army is at Yockena, fifteen miles below Oxford, and that there is an expectation of an advance movement soon. Large numbers of cotton bales from the north have arrived with permits from the government to purchase and strip cotton. The correspondent considers this a great evil, and that Gen. Grant's idea was the best; let the government seize all the cotton, paying to loyal men a fair price for it, and confiscate the balance. Col. Murphy, of the 8th Wisconsin, has command at Holly Springs.

PUTTING DESERTERS AT WORK.—Deserters, whose regiments are unknown, are to be organized and set to work on the defenses of Washington. Deserters, when they can be identified, are immediately returned to their regiments.

THE GIFT OF NEVADA TO THE SANITARY COMMISSION.—The magnificent contribution of Nevada territory to the sanitary commission, for our sick and wounded, in eight bars of silver and gold bullion, valued at $25,000, has arrived in New York.

THE ST. LOUIS DISTRICT.—The St. Louis Democrat reasons upon the necessity that Missouri should have her representation in congress at this time, when questions vital to her and of great importance to the Union are to be acted upon, and especially upon the right of the St. Louis district, which has declared for emancipation, to be represented; therefore the Democrat deprecates the absence of Mr. Blair, who has taken the field as a brigadier general, leaving his seat vacant but not resigning and giving no opportunity for a new election; and insomuch as the house has recognized his permanent absence by supplying his place on the committees, the Democrat argues that it should declare his seat vacant, so that the people of that district may elect a representative.

ANOTHER TESTIMONY AGAINST REBELS.—Gen. Curtis has instructed the provost marshals in Missouri to accept the statements of negroes as prima facie evidence of the disloyalty of their masters. The negroes are taking great interest in furnishing proof of their masters' sympathy with the rebels. A negro arrived at Rolla last week with a bundle of letters, flushed from his master's desk, which proved conclusively his master's sympathy with the south, and implicated his neighbors to such an extent that several arrests were made. Another darky lugged a heavy trunk for miles, and reached Palmyra with it, to show the provost marshal that it belonged to his master and was filled with various emblems of treason.

We do not see why their testimony should not be received. The color of a man's complexion cannot affect the truth of his statements.

THE BATTLE OF FREDERICKSBURG.

when night came it was hard to say who were the victors. Of the killed and wounded there were probably as many on the side of the rebels as on ours. No correct estimate can be formed of the loss in Hooker's corps, but it was pretty heavy. The firing of musketry ceased about half-past five o'clock, but the rebels continued to cannonade the city until long after dark. They evidently intended to shell us out of our position in Fredericksburg; but thus far they have been unsuccessful.

THE RESULT.

of the day's fight proves conclusively enough that the enemy's position is one of great strength, and that it will require a desperate effort on the part of Gen. Burnside to drive him from his stronghold. Gen. Franklin appears to have been the only one who effected any important result, and tomorrow he may succeed in turning Stone Jackson's position on the Massaponax. Gen. Burnside is confident of success, and is busily engaged in making arrangements for the renewal of the battle to-morrow.

Gen. Herron had only 3,500 men in the battle, the remainder of his force failing to come up on account of excessive fatigue.

Major Hubbard, of the 1st Missouri cavalry, who was a prisoner in the hands of the enemy on the day of the battle, counted twenty-two regiments of infantry, and twenty-two pieces of artillery on the retreat.

Gen. Burnside yesterday had the impudence, by flag of truce, to request the privilege to send topographical engineers to make a drawing of the battle field of Prairie Grove and approaches. Gen. Blunt replied that he would grant the request when he was allowed to send an engineer to make a drawing of Van Buren and surroundings.

ST. LOUIS, December 17.

Gen. Horron telegraphs Gen. Curtis that the victory at Prairie Grove was much more complete, and the enemy's loss far greater, than at first reported. Over 1,500 rebels were killed and buried by us. Their wounded were found scattered through the woods for miles in the rear of their position, where they had been carried during the action, and left when they retreated. Many consequently died for want of attention.

Our cavalry pursued the retreating rebels closely, driving them beyond Van Buren; The position and condition of our forces are excellent. The campaign has been most brilliant, reflecting great credit on the officers and men of the frontier.

DEATH OF GEN. WARD, IN CHINA.

Late Chinese papers give some particulars of the death of the American adventurer, Gen. Ward, formerly a resident of Salem, Mass., but lately the bold and brave leader of a well disciplined force of Chinese on the Imperial side in China. It appears that Ward, with the help of two English gunboats, had repulsed an attack of the rebels, killing seven hundred of them, but that, while he was viewing the fugitives through his glass, a bullet struck him in the stomach, inflicting a wound of which he died the following day. He made his will, and appointed his minister to China, Hon. Anson Burlingame, as one of his executors.

No attack has yet been made on Jackson, Tenn., though it is asserted that Morgan has crossed the Tennessee river with a large cavalry force, intending to cut off railroad communication with Corinth.

AMERICAN HERALD.

—Among the reported dead at Fredericksburg is the Rev. Arthur B. Fuller, chaplain of the 16th Massachusetts. He volunteered in the hazardous task of crossing the river, and gave his life as the price of his zeal and patriotism. As chaplain of the 16th Massachusetts, Mr. Fuller has been unwearied in his labors for the material as well as the spiritual good of the men, and has exercised over them a remarkable influence. No hardships appalled him, and he always sustained others by his own unflinching courage and his devotion to the cause he had given himself to serve. Mr. F. was a brother of the late Margaret Fuller.
